Nicole's special selection

The Mid Summer Festival, English and French music, creation, theatre

The Festival 11 to 27 June 2010

The solstice, Shakespeare, a festival

At the start of summer, the shortest night invites dreams and pleasure. It is the summer solstice, a unique time when the dividing line between day and night, the real and the imaginary, tend to blur. Shakespeare wrote a play about it: A Midsummer Night's Dream. Over three weekends in June, at the foot of the ramparts of Château d'Hardelot, an ephemeral Elizabethan theatre made from canvas and wood will be erected. It is this date and this place, and thanks to Shakespeare, that the idea of the Midsummer festival came into being. Find out more

The Great War, 1914 - 1918 in Pas-de-Calais

Following the success of the euro-regional map 14-18 (that you can still order at Nicole@pas-de-calais.com), I've decided to present some articles about the nations which fought on our territory during WWI as well as unknown and famous heroes. I hope you will enjoy reading these testimonies from the past. This month, Vera Brittain... Find out more
